Williams County Seeking Photographs

Modern and Historical Photos Needed to Decorate Walls of New Administration Building

Williston, N.D., (February 27, 2017) – Williams County is searching for photos taken in Williams County to be used as art in the soon-to-be expanded Williams County Administration Building (CAB). Photographs representing Williams County from past to present will be used to illustrate the legacy of our region.

Photos will be accepted in both digital and physical formats and should be inspired by Williams County and North Dakota. Portraits of people will not be considered. Photographs to be featured in the building will be selected by the Williams County Building Committee. Of the selected photos there will be one grand prize ($500) and four honorable mentions ($125). All displayed photos will include photographer credit. Once selected the photo owner will be required to release the rights of use to Williams County.

Additionally, Williams County is interested in any three dimensional historical pieces that the public is interested in donating for display in the new building. As with the images these will be reviewed and selected by the Building Committee.

Williams County is excited to involve our community in this opportunity. Williams County Commission Chairman and member of the Building Committee David Montgomery says, "With the new county administration building being a public building and with all the rich history of Williams County, we hope that a lot of people will share their photos and memories to place in the new building for current and future generations to enjoy."

Deadline for all submittals is Monday April 3, 2017. Photos and historical items can be delivered in person to the Communications Department at 302 E Broadway, Williston or via e-mail at communications@co.williams.nd.us
